

Amy Cornwall-Robinson received her Bachelors degree in Music Education from the Crane School of Music, Potsdam, NY in 1978. She attended Western Connecticut State University for her Masters in Music Education. Amy spent her career teaching vocal music to middle and high school children in Red Hook, NY. Amy was also the Music Director for the St. John's Reformed Church in Upper Red Hook for 20 years. Amy served as treasurer for the Dutchess County Music Educators Association for 6 years. Since retiring to The Villages in 2016, Amy now sings in the New Covenant United Methodist church choir, rings handbells in their Praise Ringers group, and sings in Village Voices.